3. By adding to section 602 thereof the following new subsections (6) and (7):—

“(4) Where the taxpayer has disposed of a property before the end of the taxation year, the amount allowed as a deduction under subsection (1) in respect of the property shall not exceed that proportion of the maximum amount allowable that the number of months during which the property was used is of 12.

“(5) The aggregate of the allowances under this section shall not exceed the amount deducted in respect of such allowances in computing the income or profit for the taxation year shown on the financial statements presented to the shareholders or members.

“(6) In lieu of the aggregate of the allowances under subsection (1), the taxpayer may deduct, for the purpose of computing income for the 1949 taxation year, such part of the capital cost of the taxpayer's property as, in the opinion of the Minister of Finance, would be allowed as depreciation for the year if the law and practice applicable to the 1948 taxation year under the ‘British Columbia Corporation Income Tax Act,’ being chapter 86 of the Statutes of 1947, were applicable to the year.

“1301. The amount allowed as a deduction under section 1300 in respect of a property shall not exceed the amount by which the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer exceeds the aggregate of the deductions from income allowed under this Part in respect of the property for previous taxation years.

“(2) The properties referred to in section 1300 shall be deemed not to include the land upon which a property described therein was constructed or is situated.

“(3) Where the taxpayer is a non-resident person, the properties referred to in section 1300 shall be deemed not to include property that is situated outside of Canada.

“1303. (1) Except as otherwise provided, ‘depreciable cost to the taxpayer of property’ means the actual cost of property to the taxpayer or the amount at which he is deemed to have acquired the property under subsection (4) of section 19 of the Act, as the case may be.

“(2) Where the taxpayer has, in a taxation year, regularly used a property in part for the purpose of gaining or producing income from farming or fishing and in part for a purpose other than gaining or producing income, the depreciable cost of the property for the purpose of this Part is the proportion of the amount that would otherwise be the depreciable cost that the use regularly made of the property for the purpose of gaining or producing income from farming or fishing is of the whole use regularly made of the property.

“(3) Where a taxpayer has received or is entitled to receive a grant, subsidy or other assistance from a government, municipality or other public authority in respect of or for the acquisition of property, the depreciable cost is the amount that would otherwise be the depreciable cost thereof to the taxpayer minus the amount of the grant, subsidy or other assistance.

“(4) Where property did belong to one person (hereinafter referred to as the original owner) and has, by one or more transactions between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in a taxpayer, the depreciable cost of the property to the taxpayer is the lesser of

- “(a) the actual capital cost of the property to the taxpayer, or
- “(b) the amount by which the actual capital cost of the property to the original owner exceeds the aggregate of
- (i) the total amount of depreciation for the property that, since the commencement of 1917, has been or should have been taken into account in accordance with the practice of the Department of National Revenue, in ascertaining the income of the original owner and all intervening owners for the purpose of the Income War Tax Act (Canada), or in ascertaining a loss for a year when there was no income under that Act, and

(ii) any accumulated depreciation reserves that the original owner or an intervening owner had for the property at the commencement of 1917 and that were recognized by the Minister of National Revenue for the purpose of the Income War Tax Act (Canada), and

(iii) the aggregate of the deductions, if any, allowed under this Part in respect of the property to the original owner and all intervening owners.

"1304. This Part shall not apply where a taxpayer has claimed an allowance computed under Part VI in computing his income from farming or fishing for the taxation year or any previous taxation year."
